NOTICE: The proposed amendment revises Article III of the Constitution by adopting one new Section to be known as Article III, Section 54.

Be it resolved by the people of the state of Missouri that the Constitution be amended:

Section A. Article III of the Constitution is revised by adopting one new Section to be known as Article III, Section 54 to read as follows:

Section 54.

1. Notwithstanding any provision of this constitution to the contrary, the legislature shall be prohibited from weakening citizens' direct lawmaking power. For the purposes of this subsection, the term "weakening citizens' direct lawmaking power" shall be defined to include proposing or passing any law or amendment that would weaken citizens' power of initiative, weaken citizens' power of referendum, or weaken both of those powers. The term shall be construed broadly and shall include any change making it more difficult for the citizens to reject by referendum acts of the legislature or making it more difficult for the citizens to propose or enact laws or amendments through the initiative. Examples of such changes include, but are not limited to, raising signature thresholds, shortening the time allowed for signature collection, narrowing allowable subject matter, imposing additional qualifications or procedural requirements on petitioners, or raising the vote percentage required to approve a measure at the ballot.
2. Notwithstanding any provision of this constitution to the contrary, the legislature shall be prohibited from changing any citizen-initiated law or proposing any measure changing a citizen-initiated amendment, except in the event that eighty percent of the House and Senate approve the change.
 - (1) For the purposes of this subsection, a "citizen-initiated law" is defined to be a law that the people have proposed and enacted by the initiative at any time, whether before, on, or after the effective date of this section.
 - (2) For the purposes of this subsection, the legislature is defined to "change" a citizen-initiated law if it passes a bill which modifies, repeals, or supersedes any part of said law, whether explicitly or by implication, and whether with or without the signature of the governor.
 - (3) For the purposes of this subsection, a "citizen-initiated amendment" is defined to be a portion of this constitution that the people have proposed and enacted by the initiative as a constitutional amendment at any time, whether before, on, or after the effective date of this section.
 - (4) For the purposes of this subsection, a measure is defined to "change" a citizen-initiated amendment if it modifies, repeals, or supersedes any part of said amendment, whether explicitly or by implication.
 - (5) This subsection shall not be construed to permit the legislature to take any action otherwise prohibited by a provision of this constitution outside this subsection.
3. Notwithstanding any provision of this constitution to the contrary, every ballot measure shall be decided at a general election, except in the event that eighty percent of the House and Senate approve calling a special election. For the purposes of this subsection, the term "every ballot measure" encompasses all measures put to a vote of the people, whether by legislative referral or by way of citizens' initiative or referendum, and whether changing the laws or changing this constitution.
4. Notwithstanding any provision of this constitution to the contrary, every ballot summary shall be clear, unbiased, fair, and accurate, and shall, when possible, use only language found in the ballot measure. For the purposes of this subsection, the term "every ballot summary" encompasses the ballot summaries of all measures put to a vote of the people, whether by legislative referral or by way of citizens' initiative or referendum, and whether changing the laws or changing this constitution.
5. For the purposes of this section, "eighty percent of the House and Senate approve" means that at least eighty percent of the members of the House and at least eighty percent of the members of the Senate each separately approve.
6. If any provision of subsections 1, 2, 3, 4, or 5 of this section or the application thereof to anyone or to any circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of those provisions and the application of such provisions to others or other circumstances shall not be affected thereby.
